Today we are aiming to write about the poem that we have been memorising.
How should we write about poetry we have read?
Look again at “Hey Ho, the wind…”

- How many different types of trouble can you find?
- Could you explain what is troublesome about these things?
- Are these problems bound to happen or could they be avoided?
How does Shakespeare express his view of how we should deal with life’s troubles?

You should answer this question in paragraphs.

Make sure that you use quotations from the poem.

Aim to write at least a page.
